About the Empty Homes Network

The Empty Homes Network are a national organisation with over 900 individual members, launched in 2001 as the 'National Association of Empty Property Practitioners' (NAEPP) with the support of the government.

On its launch, the then Housing Minister Sally Keeble wrote: "NAEPP will provide a national voice for local authority and RSL staff in their work to bring empty homes back into use. The Government is keen to see its membership grow into a national network of empty property practitioners, so I would urge all local authorities to take out membership. This will ensure that all relevant officers in the authority benefit from the good practice and training opportunities developed by, and for, empty property practitioners"

Since its conception, the Empty Homes Network has expanded to include those working in regeneration companies, community housing organisations and in a range of private sector firms involved in bringing empty homes back into use.

Our aim, is to support all practitioners, local authorities and organisations involved in addressing the issue of empty homes, and to help them work as effectively and efficiently as possible. We do this by facilitating the sharing of information and experience, by organising and delivering training courses and through our annual Conference, by promoting best practice amongst delivery partners and promoting sound policy at national levels.

As a membership organisation, we are separate from and independent of the charity Action on Empty Homes, whose contribution and campaigning on the issue of bringing empty homes back into use we greatly appreciate.

About the Conference

Recognised as the flagship event in the empty homes calendar, 2025's conference will return to The Studio in Birmingham following the success of the events over the past two years. Regularly attended by over 150 empty homes and housing professionals from across the UK, our annual conference draws on the knowledge and experience of experts in their field, to address issues being faced by practitioners in their day-to-day roles.

With previous appearances including Andrew Stunell OBE, Don Foster MP and the BBC's Matt Allwright, we source the content, speakers and presenters to best benefit our attendee in order to provide best value to them, their roles, and their local authorities. We offer a variety of ways for you to support our event, allowing you to advertise and reach out to practitioners across the housing and empty homes field, by showing your:

- commitment to tackling the issue of empty homes
- support to those whose roles involve encouraging empty home owners to see their properties returned to use
- capacity and ability to deliver skills, resources and solutions that assist in bringing empty homes back

Returning to an in-person format for the third year following the Covid-19 pandemic, the National Empty Homes Conference 2025 promises to be our biggest and most successful event to date, and we would welcome the opportunity to work with you to facilitate this and reach your target audience.

About the Venue

Returning to The Studio in Birmingham City Centre for the third time, our 2025 Conference will again be held across the Explore and Atrium function rooms. Allowing ample space for lunch, refreshments and to catch up with old colleagues, this also allows us full use of the roof terrace for Networking.

Situated on Cannon Street and minutes away from Birmingham New Street train station, The Studio offers a formal yet relaxed setting for our Conference, which proved hugely successful for our 2023 & 2024 events. Delegates are welcomed with a light breakfast upon registration, refreshments throughout the day, as well as a hot two-course lunch all served within the Atrium Café area.

The venue offers ample space for display stands offering high footfall and high visibility. Sponsor stand spaces of approximately 6' x 4' will be allocated prior to the event and will be spread across both rooms: to the rear of Explore, and within the Atrium breakout area.

Our 2025 conference will again see a lighter programme of speakers than previous years, allowing for additional networking opportunities and interaction with delegates throughout the day. The representative from each of our sponsors are of course welcome to join the sessions and interact with delegates as though they were attending the event.

A visualisation of the two rooms for our 2025 Conference can be seen on the next page.

Consideration will also be given to the organisation's field of work, and so that no two same/similar products/services are placed together.
